Build a strong foundation for a lasting relationship by deciding to honor your partner and yourself. Magnetic modulation of hydrogen diffusion in porous molecularly imprinted polymer-graphene oxide composites for selectively capturing 2-methylfuran from exhaust gas. The feasibility of modulating the activity of oxygen-containing functional groups in porous molecularly imprinted polymer-graphene oxide (MIP-GO) nanocomposite was explored in this work for capturing a specific target molecule from exhaust gas. The magnetic modulation of oxygen-containing functional groups in MIP-GO nanocomposites was achieved by modulating the amount of magnetic nanoparticles (MNPs) in the fabrication process. Experimental results showed that the amount of MNPs was modulated effectively by adjusting the volume of tetrahydrofuran added. The scanning electron microscopy (SEM) and transmission electron microscopy (TEM) were used to investigate the morphology, structure and interface morphology of the prepared MIP-GO composites. The as-synthesized MIP-GO composites exhibited imprinting activity in water and strong stability. The catalytic degradation experiment showed that the catalytic activity of the as-synthesized MIP-GO composite was five-fold higher than that of the raw GO. The kinetic study on adsorption and desorption of 2-methylfuran and p-xylene was also investigated. Both ZODIAC and HINDS were adopted to show the possibility of using the magnetic modulation method to modulate the activity of oxygen-containing functional groups in the porous MIP-GO nanocomposite. The selective recognition of 2-methylfuran was achieved from the exhaust gas, and the enrichment factor was up to 9.4. Moreover, the magnetic MIP-GO composite showed high selectivity in the presence of other molecules and was more effective in gas separation compared to the non-magnetic MIP-GO nanocomposite.Q: Select and add columns to html table in angular I would like to select columns in a html table: this is my table 04aeff104c
